REMARKS:

STAT

1. [REDACTED] a long-time senior officer in Security who recently retired, loaned me a fascinating volume from his personal library which I have naturally returned. If your bird dogs can locate another copy somewhere, it should be bought by the Agency and I would also like to have a separate copy for this office.
2. The author is Miles W. Vaughn. The title is "Covering the Far East." The book is copyrighted in 1936 and published (presumably in the same year) by a New York firm I have never heard of before called "Covici Friede." I am appending a xerox of the title page and the obverse.
3. While you are about it, I am still anxious to get a copy of Donald Lancaster's "Emancipation of French Indochina" (Oxford 1961) which, as you know, I made the mistake of lending it to someone ~~and~~ who has never returned it.
